

Private M&A 2022

Contributing editors
Will Pearce and Louis L Goldberg
Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP

Davis Polk

Davis Polk is a leader in global M&A. Clients call on our lawyers because of our track record of getting deals done.

With the benefit of our long history of innovation and creative problem-solving, Davis Polk brings strategic and sophisticated judgment, commercial awareness and unsurpassed service to our clients across the full spectrum of M&A transactions.

Our M&A clients rely on the seamless integration of Davis Polk's unparalleled tax, finance, executive compensation and regulatory practices.

Learn more at davispolk.com.

davispolk.com

©2021 Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP
ATTORNEY ADVERTISING. Prior results do not guarantee similar outcome.

Publisher

Tom Barnes

tom.barnes@lbresearch.com

Subscriptions

Claire Bagnall

claire.bagnall@lbresearch.com

Head of business development

Adam Sargent

adam.sargent@gettingthedealthrough.com

Published by

Law Business Research Ltd

Meridian House, 34-35 Farringdon Street

London, EC4A 4HL, UK

The information provided in this publication is general and may not apply in a specific situation. Legal advice should always be sought before taking any legal action based on the information provided. This information is not intended to create, nor does receipt of it constitute, a lawyer-client relationship. The publishers and authors accept no responsibility for any acts or omissions contained herein. The information provided was verified between August and September 2021. Be advised that this is a developing area.

© Law Business Research Ltd 2021

No photocopying without a CLA licence.

First published 2017

Fifth edition

ISBN 978-1-83862-702-7

Printed and distributed by

Encompass Print Solutions

Tel: 0844 2480 112

Private M&A

2022

Contributing editorsWill Pearce and Louis L Goldberg*Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP

Lexology Getting The Deal Through is delighted to publish the fifth edition of Private M&A, which is available in print and online at www.lexology.com/gtdt.

Lexology Getting The Deal Through provides international expert analysis in key areas of law, practice and regulation for corporate counsel, cross-border legal practitioners, and company directors and officers.

Throughout this edition, and following the unique Lexology Getting The Deal Through format, the same key questions are answered by leading practitioners in each of the jurisdictions featured. Our coverage this year includes new chapters on Latvia and Spain.

Lexology Getting The Deal Through titles are published annually in print. Please ensure you are referring to the latest edition or to the online version at www.lexology.com/gtdt.

Every effort has been made to cover all matters of concern to readers. However, specific legal advice should always be sought from experienced local advisers.

Lexology Getting The Deal Through gratefully acknowledges the efforts of all the contributors to this volume, who were chosen for their recognised expertise. We also extend special thanks to the contributing editors, Will Pearce and Louis L Goldberg of Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP, for their continued assistance with this volume.

London

September 2021

Reproduced with permission from Law Business Research Ltd

This article was first published in September 2021

For further information please contact editorial@gettingthedealthrough.com

Contents

Comparing UK and US private M&A transactions	5	Denmark	76
Will Pearce and William Tong Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP		Anders Ørjan Jensen and Charlotte Thorsen Gorrissen Federspiel
The use of completion accounts in private M&A transactions	10	Dominican Republic	84
Tom Crossland and Fabian Sherwin Deloitte		Fabio J Guzmán Saladín and Pamela Benzán Guzmán Ariza
Foreign direct investment controls in cross-border acquisitions	14	Egypt	89
Matthew Yeowart, Léonore De Mullewie and Sara Moshfegh Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP		Mohamed Hashish and Rana Abdelaty Soliman, Hashish & Partners
HR, incentives and retention issues in M&A transactions	18	Finland	95
Matthew Emms BDO LLP		Fredrik Lassenius, Christoffer Waselius and Niko Markkanen Waselius & Wist
Data privacy and cybersecurity in global dealmaking	24	France	104
Matthew Bacal and Pritesh Shah Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP		Jacques Naquet-Radiguet Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP
Riders on a storm: signs of a hardening M&A insurance market?	32	Georgia	111
Piers Johansen and Dominic Rose Aon M&A and Transaction Solutions		Archil Giorgadze and Ana Kochiashvili MG Law Office
Australia	35	Germany	119
Michael Wallin and Andrew Jiang MinterEllison		Alexander Schwarz and Ralf Morshäuser Gleiss Lutz
Austria	43	Greece	129
Christian Herbst and Maximilian Lang Schoenherr		Catherine M Karatzas, Anna K Manda and Olga Vinieri Karatzas & Partners Law Firm
Belgium	50	Hong Kong	137
Dries Hommez and Florent Volckaert Stibbe		Yang Chu, Miranda So and Jason Xu Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP
Canada	60	Indonesia	147
John M Mercury, James T McClary, Bryan C Haynes, Ian C Michael, Kristopher R Hanc and Drew C Broughton Bennett Jones LLP		Yozua Makes Makes & Partners
China	68	Israel	154
Jiangshan (Jackson) Tang Haiwen & Partners Howard Zhang Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP		Sharon A Amir and Idan Lidor Naschitz Brandes Amir
		Italy	162
		Francesco Florio and Paolo Antonio Mulas Legance – Avvocati Associati

Latvia	170	South Korea	271
Gints Vilgerts and Jūlija Jerņeva VILGERTS		Sky Yang, Mok Hong Kim, Hyunchul An and Joceline Park Bae, Kim & Lee LLC
Luxembourg	177	Spain	278
Gérald Origer, Claire-Marie Darnand and Michaël Meylan Stibbe		Guillermo del Río Uría Menéndez
Malaysia	185	Sudan	286
Dato' Foong Chee Meng, Tan Chien Li, Khor Wei Min and Vivian Chew Li Voon Foong and Partners		Mahmoud Bassiouny, Yassir Ali, Nadia Abdallah and Amgad Nagy Matouk Bassiouny
Myanmar	195	Sweden	292
Takeshi Mukawa, Win Naing, Julian Barendse and Nirmalan Amirthanesan Myanmar Legal MHM Limited		Peter Sundgren and Matthias Pannier Vinge
Netherlands	204	Switzerland	300
Hans Witteveen and Jeroen Tjaden Stibbe		Claude Lambert, Reto Heuberger and Andreas Müller Homburger
New Zealand	215	Thailand	309
Erich Bachmann, Kate Telford and Julika Wahlmann-Smith Hesketh Henry		Panuwat Chalongkuamdee, Natira Siripun, Chositar Daecharux and Thosaphol Thurongkinanonth SRPP Limited
Norway	222	Turkey	319
Ole K Aabø-Evensen Aabø-Evensen & Co		Noyan Turunç, Esin Çamlıbel and Kerem Turunç Turunç
Philippines	234	United Arab Emirates	327
Lily K Gruba and Jorge Alfonso C Melo Zambrano Gruba Caganda & Advincula		Malack El Masry and Charlotte Jackson Ibrahim & Partners
Portugal	241	United Kingdom	336
Francisco Santos Costa Cuatrecasas		Will Pearce, Simon Little and William Tong Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP
Serbia	250	United States	345
Nenad Stankovic, Sara Pendjer and Mitar Simonovic Stankovic & Partners NSTLaw		Cheryl Chan, Darren M Schweiger and Evan Rosen Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP
Singapore	260	Zambia	354
Ong Sin Wei, Teo Hsiao-Huey, Soong Wen E and Daniel Chui WongPartnership LLP		Joseph Jalasi, Mailesi Undi and Jonathan Chileshe Eric Silwamba, Jalasi & Linyama Legal Practitioners

Comparing UK and US private M&A transactions

Will Pearce and William Tong

Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP

Over the past five years or so, the volume and value of cross-border private M&A transactions has grown, deal terms and documentation have been harmonised, and controlled sales processes and seller-friendly terms have prevailed, driven undoubtedly by the availability of private capital and the approach taken to deals by financial buyers and sellers.

In this environment, one of the key decisions for a seller has remained the choice of governing law and market practice for the transaction documents and auction process. While it is not uncommon for a seller simply to choose the governing law and market practice of the jurisdiction with the closest nexus to the target company (eg, country of incorporation), from a legal perspective, a seller generally has complete freedom of choice of governing law for the transaction agreements, even if such law has no connection with the target.

Specifically, there may be tactical advantages for a seller in relation to this choice as a particular law or usual market practice may provide it with a better outcome for the transaction as compared with the law of the target's jurisdiction; for example, greater deal certainty and price certainty and reduced exposure to warranty liability under the transaction agreements. Alternatively, choosing a particular law and market practice that will be most attractive to the universe of potential buyers and allow them to work with their regular advisers may drive a smoother, quicker process or a higher price for the seller.

Most, but certainly not all, cross-border transactions tend to follow either UK and European norms or US market norms. In deciding between these two sets of well-established norms, a seller should consider the impact of its choice on the sales process, form and content of transaction documents, the need for deal certainty, how the deal will be priced and the form and extent of recourse under the agreement (eg, for breach of representations and warranties). While, at first blush, there may appear to be little, if any, difference in the approach taken in the UK and Europe on the one hand and the US on the other, there remain a number of points to be considered.

Running a successful controlled sales process

Although there are no substantive differences in how an auction process is run, in the UK and Europe, a seller will often take a number of steps designed to maximise the price that they can get from bidders and to ensure a speedy sale of the relevant target company, all of which involve additional upfront time and costs for the seller, that are less commonly seen in a US-focused process.

Vendor due diligence

Typically, a UK or European seller will commission a number of advisers to prepare vendor due diligence reports covering financial, tax and legal diligence matters. These reports will be made available to bidders in the auction process on a non-reliance basis under the terms of a release letter.

More importantly, the bidder that succeeds in the auction will be able to rely on these reports in accordance with the terms of reliance letters issued by the relevant diligence providers. Such reliance will normally be subject to monetary caps on the advisers' liability for any deficiencies in respect of the reports and other customary liability limitation provisions. Ultimately, such reliance is designed to form part of a buyer's recourse in respect of the transaction.

The use of the vendor due diligence report is meant to speed up the bidders' processes by flagging the key due diligence issues that warrant focused further investigation by bidders and their advisers or that go to price. In theory, they also reduce the cost for buyers of participating in a process and allow a seller to reach out to a greater number of potential buyers without stretching target management too thinly.

Non-binding indications of insurance cover

A UK/European seller and its financial advisers will often work with an insurance broker to put together a pre-arranged warranty and indemnity insurance package for bidders to consider alongside the transaction documentation. This is uncommon in a US-led process. Specifically, the insurance broker will prepare a report that sets out non-binding indication of terms (eg, covering details of premium, policy limit and retention amounts) from a number of insurers based on the representations, warranties and indemnities, as the case may be, set out in the auction draft of the transaction documents and other information that will be made available to all potential buyers, such as the target's accounts and any information memorandum. The non-binding indication of terms is then shared with potential bidders.

Obtaining the indication of terms and making it available to potential buyers allows a seller to take the approach of limiting meaningful recourse against it (or target management) under the transaction documents, while at the same time offering some form of recourse to a buyer under an insurance policy. It is difficult for a buyer to dispute the availability of recourse in such circumstances if a seller has already spoken to an insurance broker to check the extent to which and the terms upon which transaction insurance would be available.

Further, a seller will be keen to maintain control and confidentiality of its competitive sales process. By sourcing the non-binding indication of terms itself, a seller can restrict buyers from approaching insurers in the non-disclosure agreement entered into at the start of the process and avoid any buyer disrupting its preordained sales timetable to go off and source an insurance quote. In addition, a seller will hope that by stapling insurance coverage to a set of representations and warranties that it (or target management) are happy to provide, it will succeed in minimising the extent of any negotiation of the same by potential buyers.

Stapled financing

In UK and European processes, particularly in secondary or tertiary buyouts where management wish to retain a substantial equity stake or otherwise wish to minimise business disruption and ensure continuation of financing relationships, a seller and its financial advisers may well provide information to potential bidders of prearranged acquisition financing packages that third-party banks or alternative lenders have agreed, in principle, to provide to the successful bidder in the auction. This package is normally referred to as 'stapled financing'.

The terms of this package (usually in the form of a commitment letter and term sheet) will be pre-negotiated between, on the one hand, a seller and its advisers, and, on the other hand, the debt provider. The debt provider will be provided with information on the target (including, for example, the vendor due diligence reports that will be made available to potential bidders) and will be expected to have its internal approvals in place (subject to customary approval of the identity of the buyer and final documentation) before the financing terms are provided to potential bidders.

Stapled financing helps a seller keep control and confidentiality of the sale process and helps to speed up the bidders' processes for obtaining acquisition financing for the transaction as a considerable amount of the preparatory work (including diligence by the debt providers) would be done by the seller on behalf of potential bidders as part of the pre-auction process. By sourcing the stapled financing itself, a seller can then restrict buyers from approaching lenders in the non-disclosure agreement entered into at the start of the process and avoid any buyer disrupting its pre-ordained sales timetable to go off and source acquisition finance. Further, the practice supports the general desire of, and the established market practice for, a seller in a UK or European process to require potential bidders to demonstrate availability of certain funding ahead of entering into transaction documentation.

Choosing the form of the transaction documents

Broadly speaking, cross-border private M&A transactions tend to use either US-style transaction documents (typically governed by Delaware or New York law) or UK- or European-style transaction documents (typically, but not always, governed by English law). There is a widely held perception that a UK- or European-style agreement and related market practice is seller-friendly. By contrast, a US-style agreement and related market practice is regarded by some as more buyer-friendly.

One fundamental reason for this difference is that UK and European market practice tends to regard economic risk as transferring from the seller to the buyer at the point of signing the acquisition agreement rather than at closing, whereas US market practice tends to regard economic risk as transferring to the purchaser at the point of closing.

Set out at the end of this chapter is a comparative table showing some of the key differences (and similarities) between the approach taken in a UK- or European-style transaction governed by English law and a US-style transaction governed by New York law, in each case assuming a willing trade buyer and trade seller of equal bargaining power. Clearly, in either case, the opening position of a financial seller in a controlled sales process will be far more seller-friendly, regardless of jurisdiction or established market practice.

In the US, regardless of the nature of the seller, acquisitions and disposals of privately owned companies are typically effected by way of either a direct purchase of the equity of the company from its shareholders (often called a stock deal) or pursuant to a merger. If implemented by way of a stock deal, a purchase agreement would be used. If implemented by way of a merger, a merger agreement would be used. Warranties – both fundamental (eg, title to shares and capacity to sell) and business (eg, on tax, litigation and intellectual property) warranties – would be given by the sellers (including financial sponsors) in these agreements.

In contrast, in the UK and Europe, the distinction between a financial and trade seller may have an impact on transaction documentation. For the latter, this would be the same as in the US in that a share purchase agreement would be entered into by the parties and the sellers would provide both fundamental and business warranties in the agreement.

However, if the key seller is a financial rather than trade seller, there will normally be a share purchase agreement between seller and buyer that will set out the fundamental warranties to be given by the seller and a management warranty deed between target management and buyer that will set out the business warranties to be given by the target management. This reflects the position adopted by financial sellers in Europe that they will only provide fundamental warranties to a buyer, as day-to-day responsibility for running the business has been left to the target management team (who may or may not have an equity stake in the target company), who are better placed to provide business warranties to the buyer.

Ensuring deal certainty

Conditionality and termination rights

There is generally greater deal certainty for a seller in a UK or European process: usually, transactions are subject to a very limited range of closing conditions, and a seller (unless it is in a weak negotiating position) will only accept the conditions to closing that are required by applicable law or regulation (eg, receipt of mandatory antitrust approvals or, for a UK premium-listed buyer, shareholder approval if the transaction is a Class 1 transaction under the UK Listing Rules). A UK or European seller is very unlikely to accept a 'no material adverse change' condition, any condition that requires warranties to be accurate at closing or any financing condition. By contrast these types of conditions are typical for a US law-governed acquisition agreement.

Certain funds

Specifically in relation to financing and as noted above, a UK or European seller will often require a buyer to proceed on a 'certain funds' basis. In practice, this means that the buyer must be able to demonstrate the availability of financing prior to entering into the transaction, and a seller will not allow the buyer to walk away from the transaction after signing an agreement, even if its lenders decide not to fund the acquisition. In some cases, especially if the buyer's home jurisdiction imposes capital controls on the flow of its funds out of such jurisdiction, a seller may even require the buyer to pay a deposit or to put a small percentage of the purchase price in an escrow account at the signing of the transaction. The funds would then be forfeited if the buyer is unable to complete the transaction.

By comparison, US market practice tends to regard the gap between signing and closing as a time for a buyer to put its acquisition financing in place, with a seller normally willing to accept a material adverse change condition to match the corresponding material adverse change condition in the buyer's financing documents.

Pricing the deal: locked box v closing accounts

The use of a locked-box mechanism is now a very common feature in UK and European style private M&A transactions. The purchase price is set by reference to an agreed balance sheet (referred to as the 'locked-box balance sheet'), struck as at an agreed date in advance of signing (referred to as the 'locked-box date'), often the previous financial year-end date or the date of the most recently available management accounts. The equity price paid by the buyer at closing is essentially calculated by adding cash and deducting debt and debt-like items represented on that balance sheet from the headline price. The seller will confirm in the acquisition agreement that it has not received any value or benefit from the target (referred to as 'leakage') in the period between the locked-box date and signing, and is then restricted from doing so in the period between signing and closing. To support this protection in favour of the buyer, a seller will typically provide an indemnity to the buyer for any leakage during this time.

The locked-box mechanism offers the advantage of price certainty for the seller in that there is limited scope for any adjustments to the purchase price after closing. It ensures as clean a break as possible and, in the case of a financial seller, enables the full proceeds of a sale to be distributed by the seller to any underlying fund or other investors upon closing (without any requirement for a retention to cover any post-closing adjustments).

In contrast, while the locked-box mechanism is used in the US, it is still more customary to use closing accounts as the mechanism to determine price. In other words, the buyer pays a purchase price at closing of the transaction that is calculated based on an estimate of the target's working capital or net assets as at the closing. Closing accounts are then produced by the buyer in the period post-closing to determine the actual working capital or net assets, with adjustments made to the purchase price to reflect the difference between the actual working capital or net assets and the estimated working capital or net assets. Accordingly, there is a potential for the purchase price paid to the seller at closing to be adjusted after closing and for disputes to arise between the parties as to how those adjustments are determined.

Effective recourse for representation and warranty claims

In UK- and European-style private M&A transactions, a financial seller will always cap its liability for breach of fundamental warranties at no more than the consideration it actually receives, and, as mentioned above, it will not provide business warranties. Where target management step in to provide business warranties, it is usually on the basis that their liability is capped at a low level (as low as €1 or £1), not least as they often have a much smaller stake in the target's equity and, therefore, receive a smaller percentage of the overall sale proceeds than the financial seller.

In addition, management may well be continuing in their employment with the target after closing of the transaction, making it counterproductive for a buyer to bring a warranty claim against them. To address these issues and bridge the recovery gap, a buyer will use warranty and indemnity insurance to provide real recourse for any breach of warranty and, absent fraud, avoid having to bring an action against management.

In short, warranty and indemnity insurance provides cover for losses discovered post-closing arising from a breach of warranty or in certain cases under an indemnity. Such insurance aims to offer 'back-to-back' cover for any liability arising from a breach of warranty or for liability under any tax covenant, or both, in each case where the matter giving rise to such claims has not been fairly disclosed or was not known to the insured. Typically, UK and European warranty and indemnity insurance policies purchased by a buyer provide cover in a range between 10 to 30 per cent of enterprise value with net premiums between 1 and 1.5 per cent of the value of the policy.

In general, insurers will require the insured to bear an excess of between 0.3 and 1 per cent of the enterprise value at their own risk before the insurance policy attaches; however, increasingly, for a higher premium, insurers are willing to provide insurance cover with no excess. This ties in with the desire of target management to seek to limit their liability for business warranties to €1 or £1 in that the very first pound or euro of loss for the buyer could be recovered directly from the insurer. As for US warranty and indemnity insurance, buyers often seek coverage for 5 to 20 per cent of the enterprise value of the

Davis Polk

Will Pearce

will.pearce@davispolk.com

William Tong

william.tong@davispolk.com

5 Aldermanbury Square

London EC2V 7HR

United Kingdom

Tel: +44 20 7418 1300

Fax: +44 20 7418 1400

www.davispolk.com

target with an excess of 0.5 to 2 per cent of such enterprise value, and the policy costs approximately 2.5 to 4 per cent of the coverage limit.

In UK and European style private M&A transactions where the seller is a trade rather than financial seller, liability for warranty claims is generally capped at consideration for breach of fundamental warranties and at less than 20 per cent of consideration for breach of business warranties. Warranty and indemnity insurance is sometimes used to provide a buyer with additional protection.

Similarly, in the US, liability for warranty claims is generally capped at consideration for breach of fundamental warranties and at less than 20 per cent of consideration for breach of business warranties. It is still common for escrow mechanisms to be used for such transactions (including in relation to private equity and management sellers), with a buyer depositing no more than 20 per cent of the equity value in an escrow account to settle claims against the sellers.

That being said, representation and warranty insurance is increasingly prevalent in US private M&A transactions, particularly in respect of divestitures by financial sponsors who insist on 'no seller indemnity' deals in which representations and warranties expire at closing, and there is no ongoing exposure. Such insurance is also often used in conjunction with 'public company-style' private M&A transactions in the US where, as is the case for US public M&A transactions, the buyer will have no claim under the acquisition documents against any seller other than in relation to breach of fundamental representations, covenants or fraud. 'Public company-style' private M&A transactions in the US are still uncommon, but there has been a steady increase in its use over the years in a seller-friendly market environment.

Arguably, an escrow provides better protection for the buyer as it is a source of actual funds that it can access if there is a breach of warranty. Administratively, it is also an easier process to seek the release of funds from an escrow agent compared with having to bring a claim under a warranty and indemnity insurance policy, not least as such cover is subject to various exclusions (eg, fines and penalties, environmental liabilities and cyber-attack liabilities), and there will always be a degree of mismatch between the loss suffered by a buyer as a result of a breach of warranty and the loss that a buyer can actually recover under such insurance.

Comparison of English law-governed and US law-governed acquisition agreements

English law-governed acquisition documents	Key provision	US law-governed acquisition documents
General principles: freedom to contract, caveat emptor, no positive duty to negotiate in good faith
Parties sometimes agree high-level letter of intent before a sale and purchase agreement (SPA)
Stapled financing and vendor due diligence (VDD) reports are commonly used (particularly in auction processes)	Transaction documentation and process	Similar general principles to UK
Distinctive UK-style SPA, sometimes with separate management warranty deed (for financial sponsor exits) and usually with a separate disclosure letter
Payment is generally made at closing, with post-closing adjustments based on closing accounts: may see caps and collars on adjustments
Prevalence of locked-box structure, particularly in auctions and where there is a financial sponsor seller: the structure places increased importance on pre-signing diligence and the scope of permitted leakage	Price mechanisms	Similar position to UK While there has been increase in use, locked-box structure is not as common as closing accounts
Escrow arrangements are sometimes used to give the buyer comfort on recovery of warranty claims against individuals or multiple sellers	Escrow arrangements	Similar position to UK, but escrow arrangements usually cover closing adjustments as well as other claims under the SPA Often the first or only source of recourse against a seller
Uncommon for financial sponsor sellers
Closing may be subject to regulatory, shareholder or third-party consent, but rarely subject to a financing condition		Similar conditions to UK except that financing conditions are more common, and low Hart-Scott-Rodino thresholds mean that US deals are often subject to regulatory clearances
If there is a gap between signing and closing, conditions to closing will be limited, and a seller is unlikely to agree to a no material adverse change condition (with termination right)	Conditionality and termination rights	If there is a gap between signing and closing, a no material adverse change condition is common and would give rise to a termination right (albeit a material adverse change can be difficult to establish)
If there is a gap between signing and closing, a seller will generally covenant to carry on the target's business in the ordinary course: a buyer may argue compliance with this covenant should be a condition to closing, but this is usually rejected by a seller	Pre-closing covenants	Similar position to UK
Legal distinction between warranties and representations: rescission is available for a breach of representation
Repetition is resisted by a seller: accuracy of warranties is rarely a condition to closing
Warranty package can be extensive (more limited in auction processes or where financial sponsor is the seller) and a buyer is unlikely to accept materiality qualifiers (as a broad scope of disclosure against the warranties is permitted)		No legal distinction between warranties and representations Repetition is common practice: accuracy of warranties is often a condition to closing
Warranties are given subject to general disclosures (those matters of public record or knowledge) and specific disclosures (set out in a separate disclosure letter)	Scope of warranty protection and disclosure against warranties	Warranty package is extensive, but warranties are often given subject to a level of materiality
Parties generally agree that to be effective disclosure must be 'fair' (matters must be fairly disclosed with sufficient detail to enable a buyer to identify the nature and scope of the matter disclosed), reflecting the position established by the English courts		General disclosures against warranties are not common A seller's disclosure against warranties is limited to particular matters set out in a disclosure schedule to the SPA
A seller will seek to qualify warranties by reference to all matters disclosed (and may argue the data room and vendor due diligence reports should be treated as disclosed against all warranties)		A buyer is often not restricted in the SPA from claiming for a breach of warranty where it was aware of the matter resulting in the breach: where the buyer is restricted, the provision is referred to as an 'anti-sandbagging' clause
A seller will seek to restrict a buyer's ability to claim for a breach of warranty where it was aware of the matter resulting in the breach

English law-governed acquisition documents	Key provision	US law-governed acquisition documents
Damage for a breach of warranty is generally assessed by the English courts by looking at any reduction in the value of shares acquired as a result of the breach		Warranties are generally given on an indemnity basis, facilitating dollar-for-dollar recovery for any loss suffered by the buyer
Warranties are generally not given on an indemnity basis, but it is common for a buyer to ask for specific indemnities to cover specific liabilities that have been identified: these indemnities may be capped in amount or subject to a time limit for claims	Liability of a seller	Quantum of recovery is often calculated by discounting any reference to materiality in the body of the warranties (referred to as a 'materiality scrape')
If warranties are given as both representations and warranties, a breach may give rise to a right for a buyer to rescind the SPA		As no legal distinction between warranties and representations, no right to rescind an SPA arises
Obligation on a buyer to mitigate its losses for a breach of warranty: unless an indemnity provides for it, there is no common law duty to mitigate losses under an indemnity		Similar to UK, with an obligation on a buyer to mitigate its losses
Period for claims is generally limited to between 12 and 24 months (statute of limitation for tax claims) but for competitive auction processes or financial sponsor seller, usually 12 months for all claims (including tax claims)
Liability of a non-financial sponsor seller is generally capped at consideration for fundamental breaches (breach of title warranties) and often at less than 20 per cent of consideration for other breaches.		Period for claims is generally limited to between 12 and 36 months (statute of limitation for tax claims)
Liability of a financial sponsor seller is generally capped at consideration for fundamental breaches. Liability of management often capped at a very low cap (as low as £1) for business warranty breaches with the expectation that the buyer will seek recourse from warranty and indemnity insurance	Limitation of a seller's liability	Liability of the seller is generally capped at consideration for fundamental breaches (breach of title warranties) and often at less than 20 per cent of consideration for other breaches
Claims are subject to individual (often up to 0.1 per cent of consideration) and overall (often 1 to 2 per cent of consideration) de minimis		Claims subject to individual de minimis (often US$25,000 to US$100,000) and overall deductible (often 0.5 to 1 per cent of consideration): 'tipping baskets' are not uncommon
Range of other limitations on claims commonly negotiated, including matters disclosed in accounts, sums recovered from insurance or third parties, and loss from changes in law or a buyer's actions		Range of other limitations on claims commonly negotiated, including matters disclosed in accounts, sums recovered from insurance or third parties, and loss from a buyer's actions
Separate claim periods and thresholds often apply to claims under tax covenant and for breaches of tax warranties Unusual for financial sponsor seller to provide tax covenants
A buyer will request post-closing covenants from a seller to protect its interests in the business it is acquiring: covenants generally include non-compete, non-solicitation of customers, suppliers and employees, and confidentiality. Financial sponsor sellers will not accept non-compete covenants owing to nature of their business	Post-closing covenants	Similar position to UK
Post-closing covenants will generally be for a period of 12 to 24 months		Post-closing covenants will generally be for a period of two to five years for the non-compete and 12 to 24 months for the non-solicitation and other covenants

Davis Polk

Clients turn to us for exceptional service, sophisticated advice and creative, practical solutions.

Davis Polk is an elite global law firm with world-class practices across the board. Industry-leading companies and global financial institutions know they can rely on us for their most challenging legal and business matters.

Learn more at davispolk.com.

davispolk.com

©2021 Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP

ATTORNEY ADVERTISING. Prior results do not guarantee similar outcome.

Other titles available in this series

Acquisition Finance	Dispute Resolution	Investment Treaty Arbitration	Public M&A
Advertising & Marketing	Distribution & Agency	Islamic Finance & Markets	Public Procurement
Agribusiness	Domains & Domain Names	Joint Ventures	Public-Private Partnerships
Air Transport	Dominance	Labour & Employment	Rail Transport
Anti-Corruption Regulation	Drone Regulation	Legal Privilege & Professional Secrecy	Real Estate
Anti-Money Laundering	Electricity Regulation	Licensing	Real Estate M&A
Appeals	Energy Disputes	Life Sciences	Renewable Energy
Arbitration	Enforcement of Foreign Judgments	Litigation Funding	Restructuring & Insolvency
Art Law	Environment & Climate Regulation	Loans & Secured Financing	Right of Publicity
Asset Recovery	Equity Derivatives	Luxury & Fashion	Risk & Compliance Management
Automotive	Executive Compensation & Employee Benefits	M&A Litigation	Securities Finance
Aviation Finance & Leasing	Financial Services Compliance	Mediation	Securities Litigation
Aviation Liability	Financial Services Litigation	Merger Control	Shareholder Activism & Engagement
Banking Regulation	Fintech	Mining	Ship Finance
Business & Human Rights	Foreign Investment Review	Oil Regulation	Shipbuilding
Cartel Regulation	Franchise	Partnerships	Shipping
Class Actions	Fund Management	Patents	Sovereign Immunity
Cloud Computing	Gaming	Pensions & Retirement Plans	Sports Law
Commercial Contracts	Gas Regulation	Pharma & Medical Device Regulation	State Aid
Competition Compliance	Government Investigations	Pharmaceutical Antitrust	Structured Finance & Securitisation
Complex Commercial Litigation	Government Relations	Ports & Terminals	Tax Controversy
Construction	Healthcare Enforcement & Litigation	Private Antitrust Litigation	Tax on Inbound Investment
Copyright	Healthcare M&A	Private Banking & Wealth Management	Technology M&A
Corporate Governance	High-Yield Debt	Private Client	Telecoms & Media
Corporate Immigration	Initial Public Offerings	Private Equity	Trade & Customs
Corporate Reorganisations	Insurance & Reinsurance	Private M&A	Trademarks
Cybersecurity	Insurance Litigation	Product Liability	Transfer Pricing
Data Protection & Privacy	Intellectual Property & Antitrust	Product Recall	Vertical Agreements
Debt Capital Markets		Project Finance
Defence & Security
Procurement
Digital Business

Also available digitally

lexology.com/gtdt