The two years since Dodd-Frank’s passage have seen 848 pages of statutory text expand to 8,843 pages of regulations. Already at almost a 1:10 page ratio, this staggering number represents only 30% of required rulemaking contained within Dodd-Frank, affecting every area of the financial markets and involving over a dozen Federal agencies. In this infographic, we visually describe how far the Act and its implementation have come over the past two years, both in size and complexity. One of the most controversial proposals released over the past two years was the joint regulators’ proposal to implement the Volcker Rule’s prohibitions on proprietary trading and relationships with covered funds. Over 2000 comment letters were submitted in response to the proposal. To better understand the primary concerns of these commenters, we have selected over 280 of the most detailed letters and analyzed the frequency of words and phrases that appear within them. The larger the phrase, the more frequently it appears.
This Davis Polk Title VII Complexity Graph is designed to illustrate the interconnections between Title VII swap dealer rules. As you scroll over a particular rule, green lines show rules that are referenced by the highlighted rule and red lines show rules that reference the highlighted rule. This chart shows the number of tasks for swap dealers and major swap participants in CFTC and SEC releases that Davis Polk has extracted and categorized as part of our Regulatory Hub implementation website. As the rulemaking process matures, "progress" will shift from regulatory rulemaking to market implementation.

In the spirit of transparency, several financial regulators have released details of their meetings with outside participants on Dodd-Frank issues. Based on the information available, there have been at least 2800 meetings with these regulators since July 1, 2010. Joint meetings (of which there were more than 200) are counted separately for each participating regulator.

The Davis Polk Dodd-Frank Progress Report is a monthly publication that uses empirical data to help market participants and policymakers assess the progress of the rulemaking and other work that has been done by regulators under the Dodd-Frank Act. Access previous reports on our website.

The Progress Report was developed using information from Davis Polk’s subscription-based Regulatory Tracker™ product. For more information on the Regulatory Tracker, please contact tracker@davispolk.com or view our brochure.

Required, proposed, final and missed rulemakings and studies are counted based on Davis Polk’s tally of statutory requirements in the Davis Polk Regulatory Tracker™. An agency’s rule release may satisfy several statutorily required rulemakings.

Where multiple agencies are required to issue a rule or study jointly, the requirement appears in each of their totals, which we believe most accurately reflects the staff burden on regulatory agencies.

The term Bank Regulators includes the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve, the FDIC and the OCC.
