

Asian private equity and international arbitration: Key current issues

May 31, 2023 | Articles & Books

Davis Polk partner Martin Rogers, counsel Jonathan Chang and associate Clement Sung authored “Asian private equity and international arbitration: key current issues” in The Asia-Pacific Arbitration Review 2024. The article explores key issues arising from economic headwinds that have faced private company investors in Asia and their investee companies, giving rise to complicated legal issues due to potentially overlapping rights and obligations provided for in a company’s constitutional documents (often without an arbitration agreement) and shareholders’ agreements with investors (usually containing an arbitration agreement).

Read the article

An extract from GAR’s The Asia-Pacific Arbitration Review 2024. The whole publication is available at <https://globalarbitrationreview.com/review/the-asia-pacific-arbitration-review/2024>