

Trends and developments in energy and infrastructure financing in the U.S.

November 7, 2024 | Articles & Books

Davis Polk partner and Infrastructure Finance practice co-head Elena Millerman, partner Chris Nairn-Kim, counsel Kailash Gupta and associates Julia Chen and Mostafa Al Khonaizi authored “Trends and developments in energy and infrastructure financing in the U.S.,” the USA Trends and Developments chapter in Chambers’ Project Finance 2024. In this chapter, the authors discuss market focus across a variety of infrastructure asset classes, how large capital fundraising across capital providers is resulting in innovative financing structures, and the impacts of recent regulatory developments – including the Inflation Reduction Act – on the energy and infrastructure space.

The Project Finance 2024 guide features 30 jurisdictions and provides the latest legal information on public-private partnership transactions, guarantees and security, judgments of foreign courts, foreign investment, structuring and documentation considerations, bankruptcy and insolvency, insurance, tax, and project and financing agreements.
