

Agentic AI and securities law: Steps Congress should take

June 11, 2026 | Articles & Books

Davis Polk partner Joe Hall authored “Agentic AI and securities law: Steps Congress should take” in Law360. The piece is the first of a five-part article series, which catalogs the strain agentic AI places on the existing U.S. securities law framework, including scienter, manipulation, disclosure, and the basic taxonomy of regulated actors.

In this first article, Joe examines the history of crypto regulation and offers lessons Congress could learn in its regulation of agentic AI and its use in financial activity.
