

Davis Polk Financial Services Regulatory Reform Tool — Post Midterm Election Edition

November 19, 2018 | Client Update

Financial services regulatory reform will continue to evolve in 2018 and 2019. As we observe the changing legislative landscape, here is the Post Midterm Election Edition of our reference tool, which provides context and summarizes current developments across a range of key regulatory areas, agencies and actors.

The Financial Services Regulatory Reform Tool is available on the FinReg blog, which offers frequent updates and insights on financial regulation, here. We will continue to track these issues and will provide our next update early in the new year.
