

General Counsel Update - April 2009

April 21, 2009 | Client Update

It's proxy time, and business reporters are riding their favorite seasonal hobby horse: executive compensation. This year's stories are colored by the current financial and business crisis, by the impact of various government assistance programs and by a Congressional response that has bordered on hysteria. A few compensation practices are receiving recurring attention, at times disproportionate to their actual prevalence or current impact. Here are some thoughts on a few of these practices.
