

Climate disclosure spotlight shifts to two California laws

January 14, 2025 | Articles & Books

Davis Polk counsel and Environmental practice head Loyti Cheng and counsel David Zilberberg authored “Climate disclosure spotlight shifts to two California laws” in Law360. In the article, they discuss California’s Climate Corporate Data Accountability Act and the Climate-Related Financial Risk Act. These two laws currently stand as the nation’s only broadly applicable climate disclosure legal requirements, with initial data gathering requirements potentially beginning as early as this year.

Read the full article