

Private IPOs as a capital raising and exit strategy in today's market environment

March 4, 2025 | Articles & Books

Davis Polk partner Reuven Young and counsel Maxim Van de moortel authored “Private IPOs as a capital raising and exit strategy in today's market environment” in the Butterworths Journal of International Financial and Banking Law. In the article, Reuven and Maxim take a closer look at private market capital raising and liquidity transactions referred to as “Private IPOs.” They explain the key features of a Private IPO compared to a conventional initial public offering and a conventional private placement. They also analyze why it may be an attractive option in the current market environment, the potential drawbacks and the role Private IPOs might play alongside the existing conventional capital raising and exit strategies.

Read the article (subscription required)