

Rethinking crypto regulation means throwing out old questions

April 18, 2025 | Articles & Books

Davis Polk partner Joe Hall authored “Rethinking crypto regulation means throwing out old questions” in Bloomberg Law. In the article, Joe explains that regulators often determine if a cryptoasset is a security by asking how decentralized its network is and suggests that instead, policymakers should shift their line of inquiry to what cryptoassets represent – rather than how they are stored – when deciding how to regulate them.

Read the full article