

ISS Data Verification for QuickScore (QualityScore) Opens for Limited Period

October 31, 2016 | Client Update

ISS has launched its data verification from October 31, 2016 to November 11, 2016 for the underlying data used in QuickScore (to be rebranded as QualityScore). The data is also used by ISS in formulating its research reports that investors obtain to make voting decisions.

All requested changes must be accompanied by a publicly disclosed source. QualityScores will be published on November 21. Requests for changes can also be made after that time.

QualityScores cover U.S. companies in the S&P 500 and Russell 3000. Companies that do not have a login already can request one at the email address listed here.

Companies should take the opportunity now to correct any errors in the data that ISS uses, since both companies and ISS have more time currently to engage in updating this information. During proxy season, it can be difficult to get their attention for all but material errors.
