

Trade Mark Issues in the Financial Services Industry

January 1, 2006 | Articles & Books

The recent innovation of new financial products, such as derivatives, hedge funds and other investments, has cause creators of financial products and portfolio managers alike to ask: 'What's in a name?' Some find the answer more complicated than they may have first imagined.

Related materials

Read the full article